Road Safety Analysis Ltd drives into new premises in Banbury!

Road Safety Analysis (RSA, <http://roadsafetyanalysis.org/>), acting in connection with its allied company Agilysis Ltd (<http://agilysis.co.uk/>), has recently taken new offices at 27 Horse Fair Banbury. RSA and Agilysis are market leaders in services to the road safety sector. Founded in 2010, RSA is a 'not for profit' business developing and delivering a range of road safety services which are evidence based and highly cost effective. RSA and Agilysis also run a number of independent road safety campaigns and provide management services to local authorities, and Agilysis plans to expand this innovative intelligence led approach into other aspects of public health and to international markets.

The companies' new offices situated in Banbury, with excellent access to the road network at Junction 11 of the London to Birmingham M40, provides an ideal location for them. The premises are prominently situated close to Banbury Cross within the main professional area of the town, and are also in walking distance of Banbury's main line railway station.

Bruce Walton, a Director of both RSA and Agilysis, comments:

"Demand for our expertise and unique portfolio of services has been growing steadily, so the time was right for us to expand into larger, more prestigious and better situated premises. White Commercial has helped us find a property which matches our needs and aspirations."

Chris White, Managing Director of White Commercial Surveyors, comments:

"White Commercial who are responsible for the majority of the office transactions in the region are seeing a substantial take up of offices in the region which is now impacting on the supply of office space in the area with many companies looking to expand or restructure their facilities".

White Commercial Surveyors act on behalf of clients in Oxfordshire, Northamptonshire, Buckinghamshire and Warwickshire along the London to Birmingham M40 motorway.
